Description :

We are currently looking for two educators for a one-year term as "Peer Helpers" for the Douglas Institute's residential service.

A person who offers support to peers, based on his experiential knowledge, his lived experience and knowledge of mental health, illness, social issues experienced, the consultation process, strategies to promote recovery and the resources available in the community. The peer-caregiver can share elements of their experience to support the journey of other individuals or their families, with the aim of restoring hope by serving as a role model and source of information and inspiration.

As part of the Mental Health Residential Resources Resource Stakeholder's mandate, Peer-Helper works with family-oriented Resource Residents (FTRs) and targeted Mental Health Intermediates (RIs). Among others, the peer helper:

- Is in attendance at the resource and available a few hours at least once a week and makes phone calls for practical and emotional support. Conducts formal or informal meetings with resource residents;
- Conducts education, awareness and support meetings on recovery-related issues for residents and / or potentially their families and loved ones;
- Is present when welcoming a new resident;
- May be present at break-up meetings or review of residents' plans;
